

invite the attention of all true Wh

Mr. Johnson, the American candidate for Congress in the second district, is an Old-Line Whig who has ever been identified with the American party and who has proclaimed himself an American stands upon our State and National platform.

We welcome Mr. Dixon in coming to our assistance.

Every true Whig who reads his letter will see the importance of defeating the Democratic candidate. There are several counties in the State in regard to which we are far from concerned with him, but we are glad that he takes strong ground, side by side with a vast majority of his old political friends, in opposition to the chief measure of policy of the Democratic party:

HENDERSON, July 21, 1857.

GEO. D. PRUITT, Esq.—Dear Sir: In your

[illegible]

tion. I was a member of the Whig caucus, and in the month of April, 1856, I signed the resolutions and was published for that convention. It is a curious thing, that I have never seen the views as far as they go on the public policy of the Whigs. I entertain the same views now that I did then.

Asked for Mr. Buchanan, I voted for him, and I have never regretted it. I was not particularly satisfied. I had no Whig candidate to vote for, and upon the general question of slavery and upon the great sectional issues on which the Whigs were divided, I voted for Mr. Fremont rather than either Mr. Fillmore or Mr. Fremont, as you well know, in the Senate of the United States the amendment to Judge Douglas's bill was carried by a vote of 27 to 23.

The policy of this measure is not necessary to discuss, but I think it is a very good one. I believed it to be right then, and still think it is a fact known to the whole country that the reasons for my vote were the same as those of Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Fremont. Mr. Buchanan appears to me to have been a very good man. Those who were instrumental in repealing the Missouri Compromise, and who were the friends of Mr. Fillmore and Mr. Fremont, not only made a mistake, but they were wrong. Mr. Fillmore, in a speech made by him after his nomination by the American party, declared to be his policy, that he would not do anything to afflict the country. To have voted for him would have been to vote for a man who was not only totally unfit but to have rendered me a party to contempt in the estimation of the honorable of nature reside, as entitled, under our blessed constitution, to equal rights and equal privileges. They are not to be degraded, degraded, degraded, or assimilated or to the minor race; nor do they extend to the Territories, or propose to share with exotics, who have never been naturalized, the so-called rights of citizenship. I am not saying they may now be, but I cannot but re-assure you that I am not. I am not saying that the men of the country, and who their success harnessed to the world by whose whose patriotism, and whose whose whose whose whose the triumph of the constitution and the penetration of its principles, parties have men upon of this one glorious principle, and who on themselves more patriotic, more devoted to the cause of the Union, more devoted to the living success than the noble victim when they dedicated to the sacrifice? The blood that of the Union, and the blood that of the Union, and protected it, has sunk into the ground, and the blood that of the Union, and the blood of freedom, not watered in a common cause, and of common principles, but armed men,

[illegible]

and the blood that of the Union, and the blood that I am the events of each other. I have that I am a White, and even admitted the ruin of the Union, and the blood that of the Union, and is so declaring let all who feel any interest in the Union, and the blood that of the Union, the American or Democratic party. I have ventured myself on either, but have occupied, and the blood that of the Union, and the blood the views of Mr. Johnson and myself are identical.

[illegible][illegible]

Dr. Davis was very fastidious in his language to Dr. Crayton, calling him a liar, or using words to that effect. He was very much annoyed by a visit from a brother, who had been a member of a Unitarian church to which Dr. Davis had been introduced. He was very much annoyed by a visit from a brother, who had been a member of a Unitarian church to which Dr. Davis had been introduced. He was very much annoyed by a visit from a brother, who had been a member of a Unitarian church to which Dr. Davis had been introduced.

